The Moment Network is a professional network for female technologists who have connections with the Northern regions.

The network is at present structured as a project named "Moment-nettverket" coordinated at Narvik University College, Norway.

The aim of the network is to gather together women technologists for professional and personal development - with the goal of helping to retain and attract women technologists to the north.

The objectives of the Moment-network are:

- Encourage women to participate in work with new technological possibilities and challenges in the Northern regions
- Promote role models in order to increase the number of female technology students
- Contribute towards increasing the number of women leaders in technology-based milieus through a specially devised mentor program

The network invites women from Finland, Sweden, Norway and Russia to join. The Moment network is also open to female students of technology.
